Northern Policy Institute Offers Suggestions For The Education System

Posted on Monday, September 28, 2015 08:42 AM

A report from the Northern Policy Institute wants the Ontario government to provide new tools to help First Nations, Metis and Inuit students achieve educational success. The reports says the province's education system is failing aboriginal students because a lack of access to traditional knowledge. NPI CEO Charles Cirtwill says they want teachers to undergo culture training. Cirtwill says it's also helpful when teachers stay relevant.
